

Author Talk and Book Signing

“Climate Change and Hope”

Friday, June 9, 2017, 1:00 - 2:30 PM

Elmwood Hall Senior Center, 10 Elmwood Place, Danbury

- Meet the author: Jack Kozuchowski, retired Environmental Director for Danbury
- Presentation of his book, a novel with an embedded climate science lesson
- Facilitated Q & A and discussion
- Book signing

Jack Kozuchowski was employed as Danbury's Environmental Director from 1979 - 2006. He has devoted his retirement years to educating the public on the multi-dimensional aspects of climate change. His book, Climate Futures: Time Travels to Alternative Outcomes is a new genre of literature known as "Science Fiction" which uses an adventure story to convey science to the reader. The story involves the time travels of the main character to seven different futures. The consequence of the future behind each door depends upon what we do - or do not do - to address this challenge to our planet. It is also an open-minded, non-political work that is intended to make readers consider what might be coming our way.